Q: Why does my dog bark and pester me as soon as I get on the phone?

Anyone who has ever worked as a telemarketer can tell you that half the dogs in the world start barking the minute their owners get on the phone. Why? Because they've been taught to behave that way – accidentally.

The problem starts when a dog barks at you just once when you're on the phone. Maybe she wants your attention. Maybe she just felt like barking at that moment. If she did it while you were watching television or paying the bills, you'd probably ignore her. That means no reward for the behaviour, which also means it's not likely to be repeated.

But if you're on the phone, you don't want the person on the other end to hear your dog barking – or to hear you yell at your dog to shut up. Chances are you'll pet your dog or throw her plush toy across the room just to keep her quiet. Before too long, you have a dog who starts yapping every time you pick up the phone, because that behaviour has been rewarded.

Sometimes it even goes a step further. There are plenty of people who give their dog a treat to shut her up while they're on the phone. This is a big payoff for the dog, who is now rewarded for every yip with a cookie. Why would she stop barking? Dogs are not stupid.

The best way to avoid this problem is to prevent it: Don't reward your dog in the short term for behaviour you don't want in the long run. If she barks when you pick up the phone, ignore her. If that doesn't work, or if your dog is already a phone pest, ask your veterinarian for a reference to a dog training who can help you retrain her. Believe it or not, you can teach a dog to shut up on command.

A Dalmatian dog in Leicestershire has given birth to a possible record-breaking litter of 18 puppies.

Button is the daughter of a dog who starred as Dipstick in the Disney sequel film 102 Dalmatians. Owners Adam and Nicola Morley, of Melton Mowbray, are hand-feeding the puppies. The British Dalmatian Club believes the litter is a UK record. The couple said the same dog gave birth to 15 puppies in 2007 and they were looking for homes for the pups.

"We feed all of the pups several times a day because Button can't feed them all constantly," said Mr Morley. "We all take it in turns to feed them - my stint is usually 3am."

The Morleys said they are planning to keep one puppy and will probably call it Rudolph.

The puppies were delivered by Caesarean section by veterinarian Con Hassett on 23 December. He said his team was "confronted by 18 pups in a nine or 10-minute period". "They had to revive them, clamp the cords and check them for abnormalities," said Mr Morley. "It was a hectic time for them."

Leicestershire Dalmatian Club representative Paul Hoskins said: "It is the biggest (Dalmatian) litter I have ever heard of. "I have heard of 14 or 15 puppies and that is reasonably common. A friend of mine had a litter of 14 not long ago."

Guinness World Book of Records said it did not have details for individual breeds, but the current record for a dog was 24 pups. A Mastiff called Tia gave birth to the two dozen puppies in 2004

Editor's Spot

Wow, where did June & July go to???

June saw the DAQ hold a very pleasant Championship Show with great facilities, excellent trophies and a special lunch to cap off the day free to all exhibitors. I think the organizers deserve a big round of applause from all of us who enjoyed the day. It was also great to see some old and new exhibitors there watching and showing. The Child Handlers was also hotly contested. It is so good to see the next generation of handlers eager to take in new dogs to try their skills.

Congratulations to two new Australian Champions in June.

Ch Varewell Moonstone Mist, shown & bred by Julie Beeby (yep me!!)

It may be Winter, but here in Brisbane you can never be complacent about fleas and ticks. Just last weekend I found a small paralysis tick on one of my dogs. Reminded me that it is still necessary to use tick prevention even in these colder months.

Till next month Julie
