Vice Presidents Letter:

Hi All,

Just a quick note to congratulate all the competitors at this year's Royal QLD Show. Julie Beeby and her boy Wolf Aust Ch: Varewell White Topaz, gaining his final points for his Grand Championship Title. Julie's Baby Puppy: Varewell Crystal Bloom also went Puppy of Breed.

Terry Irving's girl Aust Ch: Ozzispot Sinners N Shadows was Challenge Bitch and Allyson Forrest's girl: Aust Ch: Lykatyga Wyld Streak gaining Neuter of Breed and of Group.

It was wonderful to catch up with Dally friends we only see a couple of times a year and a great display of goodwill and friendship within our breed.

I would also like to congratulate David Staines on gaining his All Breeds Judging Licence. He has been a member of our club for many years and a great ambassador for our breed.

Cheers,

Megan

Of all the breeds of dogs I see
 Just one spotted fellow appeals to me.
 There are many types of dogs in our nation
 To me, there is just one, the Dalmatian.
 Bold black or liver spots on a field of white,
 That field of white so sparkling bright,
 Two eyes so filled with love for man,
 A heart that serves your every plan.
 The size is right for one and all,
 Not too short, not too tall.
 Happy when you're smiling,
 Droopy when you're sad.
 So, once you have owned a Dal,
 You will say there is no finer pal.
 He'll stick with you through thick or thin,
 A friend to please your every whim.

Point Score

Well, the City Point Score for 2014 is still being hotly contested with several Dals in the running to be Top Dalmatian for 2014. Currently coming first with 7 points are Ch Topspott Cherry Brandy & Grand Ch Varewell White Topaz, very closely followed on 5 points by Lotzadotz Aphancy Brand & Ch Lykatyga Dark Crystal. So with two shows to go any of them could be the outright winner.

Currently Lotzadotz Aphancy Brand is winning the Puppy Class and Paceaway Flash Point the Baby Puppy Class.

Sadly member entries have been down at the City Pointscore shows this year. I realise this is due to members work and other commitments. Lets hope that we can arrange pointscore shows on better dates for members in 2015.

I will be bringing the dates for the City Pointscore shows for 2015 to the November DAQ meeting so please let me know what dates or days of the weekend may work best for you if you cannot attend the meeting and I'll incorporate that in my proposal. The aim is to have one show a month that as many members can enter as our point score show to optimise entries.

Cheers
Julie

Our website is under construction and we hope to have it live within the next month—hopefully by the next issue, we can let you know it is online and tell you what is new about it. I am excited as I can't wait to show it off and get your feedback on what else could be included. Stay tuned!

I am happy to announce that my good friend Wendy Maxwell from MaxCapture Photography has been booked as the official photographer for the Dalmatian National 2015— bring on June!

On page 10 of this issue we have the first instalment of an interview with Lisa Davis' who was the voice of Anita Radcliffe in the 1961 classic, 101 Dalmatians.

Interview Source; UltimateDisney.

On a personal note, I have just purchased a new camera so you may notice I have included a few of my photos in this issue "Spotted Hart Photography", for those members who do dog sports let me know when you are competing and I might come along to an event and take some photos (It's all practice! preferably on the north side of Brisbane or at Durack).

An Interview with Lisa Davis, the voice and model for 101 Dalmatians' Anita Radcliff.

Both before and after Dalmatians, Davis performed in an assortment of live-action works for Hollywood, guest-starring in such TV shows as "The Beverly Hillbillies" and "Perry Mason" and appearing in films including The Virgin Queen with Bette Davis and Joan Collins, Glory with Margaret O'Brien, The Dalton Girls, Star! alongside Julie Andrews, and the camp classic Queen of Outer Space with Zsa Zsa Gabor.

Today, 71-year-old Davis lives in Los Angeles with her husband. She currently lectures on a variety of subjects at venues around the world.

With Dalmatians returning to DVD in a two-disc Platinum Edition from Disney, Davis recently took time to reflect on her most beloved film role, her memories of Walt Disney, and about man's (and woman's) best friend.

How did you get cast as Anita? Is it true that you originally read for the part of Cruella De Vil?

Lisa Davis: It's true, but it started long before that. When I was a young girl in England, Walt Disney actually brought me for the very first time to the studio to try out for Alice in Alice in Wonderland. When he first started to create that movie, he thought that he might have a live Alice and animate around her, and I looked a great deal like Alice, at the time — I was 12. However, eh changed his mind and sent me back to England, deciding that he would animate the entire movie instead, and I was very heartbroken. But he promised that he would remember me, and that one day he would try to use me again.

Well, many, many years passed, and I made it back to America, and I was working in the movie industry and doing a lot of pictures. I wound up in a really poor movie in the late '50s, a science fiction epic called Queen of Outer Space, which starred a Hungarian crazy woman called Zsa Zsa Gabor.

I learned how to imitate Zsa Zsa rather well and I did a really good Hungarian accent. When Walt Disney first thought about 101 Dalmatians, he was picturing Cruella, and since Zsa Zsa Gabor was very popular at that time and famous for loving fur coats and wearing fur, he thought that maybe he might give her a Zsa Zsa Gabor touch. And he knew that I could do it very well because he'd seen me do it, and he brought me into the studio to read for the role of Cruella De Vil.

Well, I was 21 years of age and still very British. And he was reading Anita across from me, and I was trying so hard to be Cruella, but I really wasn't. It definitely was not me to be a Cruella De Vil, but how could I possibly tell Walt Disney he'd made a mistake? After all, here was the greatest genius Walt Disney, and he'd made a mistake, he brought me in for the wrong role. But I got brave enough, and I said, "Excuse me, sir, as you read this, I can hear the role of Anita and I really am Anita, I'm not Cruella," and he said, "Would you rather try Anita?" and I said, "Please, sir, could I, could I?" He said, "Oh, yes, of course"

So we switched, and he read Cruella De Vil and I read Anita, and it was perfect. I was Anita. And he heard me and he looked at me and smiled at me, and he said, "Yes, you're right, you are Anita." And that's how I became Anita, thank goodness I did, because here so many years later, and it is the job of which I am most proud. It's had the longest life, and I'm so excited to be facing a reissue of it right now and seeing wonderful billboards all over California saying 101 Dalmatians. I'm so proud that I'm still part of something so wonderful.

That is very amazing. Were you able to work with Walt much?

Yes I was. He was very prominent at the studio during all of his movies, very much a hands-on person. I think that's the studio had so many wonderful quality products was because he was there. And he was not a demanding man at all. He was kind, compassionate, warm, he was charming. But he did ask for perfection and anybody who worked with him will say that, that he strived constantly to get everything right. I think that's the touch that we see up on the screen in all of the Disney product, is that it is such a quality product and that's why it has such a long life. I mean, every time they re-release a Disney movie, there are generations of children who haven't seen it, and as it comes again it lives today as brightly as when it was first released. Nothing happens to it; it was perfect then and it's perfect now.

Check out the next issue of the Dally Digest for the next instalment of Lisa Davis' interview.
